University of Melbourne

With a 160-year history of excellence, the University of Melbourne is among the world's leading universities, ranked number one in Australia and number 32 in the world (Times Higher Education 2019). The University is also ranked sixth in the world for graduate employability (QS 2019).

The University of Melbourne offers an undergraduate education that has moved beyond the traditional Australian education system. Its curriculum is in line with the best universities in North America, Europe and Asia, and enables students to realise their academic and personal potential, while supporting their career aspirations.

At Melbourne, students start with a degree that gives mastery of a core discipline. During their undergraduate studies, students can expand their academic horizons with 'breadth' subjects from other disciplines. For example, students can combine a Bachelor of Science majoring in Engineering Systems with subjects from a completely different discipline such as Commerce. Students can also take a Diploma of Languages alongside their undergraduate degree, adding a global dimension to their program. This approach allows students to create their own study path based on their career aspirations, with the flexibility to explore new options and new ways of thinking and learning along the way.

Melbourne also offers more than 400 graduate courses and maintains a research base across all major academic disciplines. The University's world-class research and coursework graduate programs offer a professionally relevant education.
